Coming Home

What was once a dream is now a reality.

After years of walking alongside children, youth, and families experiencing foster care, we are opening the doors to something deeply meaningful – a place created just for them. Our new Foster Care Community Center – the first of its kind – represents belonging. A space where children can simply be kids, where youth can dream about their futures, and where families navigating foster care can find connection, encouragement, and support.

This year's Angel Ball – Coming Home marks a special moment for our community as we gather for the very first time in this new home – celebrating what we have built together and the future we are creating for children and families experiencing foster care.

Guests will enjoy appetizers and dinner, an open bar, live music and dancing, guided tours of the Foster Care Community Center, a program featuring our Youth of the Year, surprise and delight moments, and opportunities to invest in the transformational work happening every day through Austin Angels.

Changing Outcomes

- 50% of foster homes close within the first year – our programs increase stability by 42%.
- 1 in 5 foster youth face homelessness by age 18 – 82% of youth and mentors remain connected after the program ends, strengthening long-term stability.
- 50% of foster youth do not graduate high school – 82% of youth in our programs do.
- 80% of children in foster care experience significant mental health challenges – 91% of children in youth in our programs report an increased sense of normalcy, emotional health and well being.

We know we can do better – and we are.
